THIS IS THE RIGHT TIME.

NEVER in the history of Tonopah has there been a more propitious time for the inception of an active market to drive away the stagnation that has obsessed the investing and speculative public for the last four months. Everything is ripe for an active movement in stocks. A retrospect of the last three months, reveals nothing but a succession of splendid strikes that, under ordinary circumstances, would have doubled the value of some of the cheaper stocks. The Midway, the holder of the championship for high grade shipments, has come back with a showing that promises to repay the Brougher interests for their steady development of that property, which has had more than its share of reverses. Nevertheless that company has always raised enough ore to pay operating expenses and the recent strike will enable it to save money. The Merger and Tonopah Extension have opened ledges of phenomenal size and value, and both companies are contemplating substantial milling additions that will add much to the prosperity of the camp. The Halifax, according to the statement of Senator Thomas Kearns, of Utah, is preparing plans for the first unit of an extensive milling plant that will probably at first treat 200 tons daily. The West End is handling 1400 tons a week without drawing upon the ore hoisted from disputed territory, and its earnings promise to touch high water mark this month. The same may be said of the Jim Butler. Without infringing on the disputed reserves the Butler is sending out an enhanced tonnage.

Now, on top of these conditions, there comes the official announcement that Resene Kula has opened a ledge of pay ore in a property that has been the butt and ridicule of the camp until it passed into the hands of the present management. The mere presence of ore under the circumstances implies the continuation of the vein for a great distance with a material advance in the physical value of the property.

Then why has not the market shown some resiliency? Has it lost the punch that made Tonopah famous? Is the investor to forget the lesson of the Tonopah Mining company with its incomparable earnings of $12,000,000 on an investment of $1,000,000 in the course of nine years? Has that no significance to the speculator or mine operator? It would seem that these arguments would sink deep into the memory of the outside world and result in creating a revival of the demand for Tonopah investment and speculative securities. A canvass of the situation brings home the conviction that people have had their faith in Tonopah shaken. To restore confidence it is necessary that the prospects of litigation be banished and that the world realize that apex troubles will not be allowed to menace the camp. This is the psychological moment for action. An agreement to submit to arbitration or to take the dispute out of the courts would bring prosperity and joy to every holder of a share in the capitalization of any Tonopah mining company. Announcement of a settlement would thrill the country and electrify it into quick action. The response would be spontaneous and banks and brokers would be first to feel the benefit. Next would come the stockholders who have their savings locked up in the shares of the contending companies. They would find their funds restored and they would be placed in a position where they could dip into the market and put out fresh commitments.

The action of the Nevada Mine Operators' association is a step in the right direction and it is fervently hoped a rift soon will appear in the dull leaden clouds that are dispiriting in face of the wonderful strikes of the past three weeks.

ALLUREMENTS OF ALASKA.

THIS is the time to beware of the siren strains of the Alaska steamship boomers. From all accounts at least two thousand more than the regular spring number will leave for the north with the opening of navigation. They want to get in on the ground floor of the government railroad construction for which the sum of $50,000,000 has been appropriated. Men desiring to go to Alaska should do so with a full consideration of the bald facts before them. The construction of the railroad will not probably begin before next year, as all the preliminary work has yet to be done and the Secretary of the Interior has to visit the district and decide on what is the best policy to pursue. He has to sift the relative value of different routes and to negotiate with existing railroads as to possible use of their lines for a northern connection. That the preliminary work may open an entirely new field and develop gold prospects better than anything opened in the glacial belt is one of the possibilities that only time can expose. Men going into the north this season should go with sufficient funds to see them through and bring them back to their homes. It is a long shot that money will be scarcer than men in Alaska before the ice closes in for the winter.

If Senator Thomas, from Colorado, former governor of that state, would give more of his eloquence to the domestic situation and less to the atrocities of Mexico his constituents would be grateful.

The editor of the Ely Expositor thinks every other editor in the state is a failure. Well, the Bonanza will abide by the opinion of the majority.

Woodrow Wilson, not satisfied with hoisting the white flag in Mexico, has covered the whole earth with whiteness.

Anything is better than nothing, thinks Huerta, when a man wants to let go.

AUTOMATIC MILL HANDLES LUMBER WITHOUT HELP

FROM LOG POND TO CARS BY MACHINERY; COMPANY PLANS TO BUILD OTHER MILLS.

WESTWOOD (Lassen Co.), April 29.—The large turbines that are to create electric power to operate the machinery of the Red River Lumber company and light the buildings have arrived and will create 1500 horsepower of electricity. The present temporary plant is operated by 500 horsepower.

From the time the logs leave the 150-acre pond and are steamed, they are handled as nearly automatically as possible. When they are put onto the carriages of the great band saws slabs and boards are ripped off of them both going and coming. These are carried to the other machines automatically, going through other saws, graders, dry kilns, planing mill, sash and door factory, box factory, or yards, being automatically piled, or automatically loaded onto cars. The weight of the lumber itself keeps it moving from one to the other of the various departments, until the loading docks are reached and it is placed on cars. Men are employed in large numbers, but they are to keep the machinery in motion.

There are 1100 men on the payroll of the company at present, and the roll is steadily growing as places can be found for them. The population of the town now is about 1800. Only two of the men who came from Minnesota to continue employment with the company have left. They could not stand the altitude. The company desires men who will stay with it permanently and to that end it is making things as comfortable and as pleasing as they can be made.
